On October 8, 2009, Plantation police officers and fire department personnel were dispatched to a call reference an infant in cardiac distress. Officers Beauregard, O'Brien and Mastrianni arrived at the house within two minutes of the call being dispatched. Upon arrival the officers found there was a three-month old boy who was not breathing. The boy's father had immediately started cardiopulmonary resuscitation (CPR). The three officers, working as a team, took over CPR and moved the boy to the ambulance so Plantation paramedics could provide treatment.

The boy was transported to the hospital for medical treatment. The Plantation paramedics on scene commended the three officers for their quick response and immediate actions. Officers Beauregard, O'Brien and Mastrianni are deserving of the department's Life Saving Award.
